PUBLICATIONS

[Published Studies]

- Hwang, Y. J., Moon, S. Y., & Cho, S. H. (2023). Exploring the Longitudinal Changes and Influencing Factors of the Type of Participation in Employment Activities of People with Disabilities before and after COVID-19: Focusing on Personal, Disability-Related, Familial, and Psychological Factors. Journal of Future Social Work Research, 14(1), 33-71.
 - First Author
 - Analyzed people with disabilities' distinct types of participation in employment activities in 2019 and 2021, along with the influencing factors at each time point.
 - Examined the transition possibility of the types according to the time.
- Hwang, Y. J. (2022). The Multidimensional Nature of Child Household Deprivation and Its Association with Family Wellness, Parenting Stress, and Parental Depression: A Comparison among Different Types of Families. Family and Culture, 34(4), 78-118.
 - Single Author
 - Examined the multidimensional nature of child household deprivation via LPA analysis and classified three groups of distinct family types.
 - Implemented Hill's ABC-X model on each group, eventually verifying each family's unique stress mechanism.
 - Suggested practical interventions to prevent parental depression based on family type.
- Hwang, Y. J., & Chung, Y. J. (2022). Determinants of Hopelessness Among Voluntary Single Women in 20-30's: Focusing on Personal, Economic, Family, and Social Psychological Factors. Family and Culture, 34(3), 27-63.
 - First Author
 - Formulated a survey and collected data on 316 voluntary single women in their 20-30s.
 - Examined the role of personal, economic, family, and social psychological factors that could influence the women's hopelessness.
 - Verified the importance of family factors (i.e., childhood experience of domestic violence, family cohesion).
 - Spearheaded discussions and presented feasible measures to prevent their hopelessness, focusing on diverse family types.
- Hwang, Y. J. (2022). The Effect of Intersectional Discrimination in Labor Market on Adult Worker's Work-Family Balance Difficulty: Focusing on the Role of Job Burnout. Journal of Critical Social Policy, 76, 219-254.
 - Single Author
 - Analyzed 2,690 adult Korean workers' data from the 6th Korean Working Conditions Survey.
 - Pinpointed relationships regarding intersected discrimination (on age, gender, religion, disability, sexual orientation, educational background, region of birth, and employment status) subjects faced, job burnout, and work-family balancing deficits.
 - Confirmed that intersected discrimination positively affected the difficulty of work-family balance, with job burnout partially mediating the pathway.

- Hwang, Y. J., & Nam, B. Y. (2022). A Phenomenological Study on the Life of Late Youth Non-binary Transgender: Exploring Ego Resilience. Social Science Review, 53(1), 141–171.
 - First Author
 - Interviewed 12 non-binary transgender people in South Korea and analyzed data employing Colaizzi's phenomenological data analysis method.
 - Surveyed their lives regarding the identity formation with family and within the society.
 - Identified fundamental familial and societal values and ego resilience from unique experiences.
- Hwang, Y. J. (2022). A Study on Life History Through the Vivid Voice of the Hearing Impaired: Focusing on the Experience of Social Exclusion and the Realization of Social Inclusion. Korean Journal of Special Education, 56(4), 19–42.
 - Single Author
 - Conducted in-depth interviews with a single participant with a hearing disability.
 - Analyzed the collected data utilizing Mandelbaum's life history analysis procedure.
 - Presented life history in detail, centering on social exclusion experiences and realizations of social inclusion.
 - Developed discourse on people with hearing disability's distinct routes of social exclusion; suggested measures for their inclusion within society.
- Yu, S. J., Song, H. J., Park, D. Y., & Hwang, Y. J. (2021). The Effect of Married Immigrant Women's Acculturative Stress on Depression: The Mediating Effect of Parenting Efficacy. Welfare & Cultural Diversity Studies, 3(2), 69–92.
 - Co-author
 - Analyzed 1,188 married immigrant women's data from the 7th wave of the Multicultural Adolescents Panel Study of South Korea.
 - Established that married immigrant women's acculturative stress significantly influenced depression, while parenting efficacy partially mediated between the two variables.
 - Proposed interventions to prevent married immigrant women's depression regarding acculturative stress and parenting efficacy.

[Master's Thesis]

- Title: Latent Profile Analysis on the Types of South Koreans' Prejudice and its Determinants Towards Social Minority Groups: Focusing on Social Identity Theory, Scapegoat Theory, and Realistic–Conflict Theory
 - Applied three prejudice-related different theories with aims to posit areas of complementation.
 - Employed LPA on 8,072 South Koreans' prejudice and attitude towards social minority groups in Korea (e.g., people with disabilities, foreign immigrants, sexual minorities, North Korean refugees).
 - Determined distinct types of prejudice demonstrated by each classified group towards social minorities and the influencing factors for each group.
